Scientists Create ‘Rewritable Magnetic Charge Ice’

A team of scientists led by Northern Illinois University physicist Zhili Xiao has created a new material, called "rewritable magnetic charge ice," that permits an unprecedented degree of control over local magnetic fields and could pave the way for new computing technologies.

Read More
The Office of Science (SC) is the single largest supporter of basic research in the physical sciences in the United States.